

MEXICO HAS A PRETTY WOMAN PRESS AGENT

(By Associated Press)
 JUAREZ, Mex., Jan. 30.—Mexico is as modern as she is ancient. General José Augustín Castro, the new commander in chief of the northeastern military zone, not only has a woman press agent but a pretty one.

It is that the general's campaign against the Villa forces receive proper attention from the Mexican and American border newspapers.

She is Señora Teresa Rodríguez, daughter of a prominent Mexican politician of Mexico City, who came north soon after General Castro was relieved from active duties of sub-secretary of war to conduct a campaign against the bandits in the north.

Señora Rodríguez does not speak a word of English but she succeeded in having her photograph and a sketch of General Castro printed in all the American border papers as soon as she arrived from Chihuahua City, to begin her public campaign for the Mexican commander.

Yet Señora Rodríguez said, in her most fluid Spanish, she did not wish to exert what the Americans called "petticoat influence" to get her stories printed.

"Why should not the Mexican adopt the best the Americans have originated," she said at military headquarters to the Associated Press correspondent.

"The much abused press agent has served a very useful purpose in presenting to the public the good features of every worthy movement, every campaign conducted by military or political leaders and even President Wilson recognized this when he appointed a director of publicity."

"General Castro does not order me to have his deeds and pictures published, although he has done many brave deeds and is a sterling military man. What he instructed me to do, especially on the American side of the border was to correct many false impressions subsidized Mexican papers have given the American public about Mexican and internal conditions. In doing this I feel I am serving my country and, besides, I enjoy the work."

QUEEN MARY SIGNS MESSAGE OF TRIBUTE TO WOMEN OF INDIA

(Correspondence Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 30.—In deep sympathy for the women of India and interest in steps taken for their advancement are expressed by Queen Mary in a message she has sent to all women of the Indian empire. The queen also paid tribute to the Indian women for the part they played in winning their husbands, sons and brothers to render military service in the war.

"A short time ago I sent a message of thankfulness and hope to the women of the empire. I wish now to add to it a special message to the women of India. If my words are read and simple, they are from the heart."

"I know that in the custom of their country and the time-honored traditions to which they are reverently bound, the women of India are for the most part prevented from undertaking those public and industrial tasks which their sisters in other parts of the empire, when the man power of the country went forth in its defense, were able to discharge in the seclusion and self-isolation of their homes. The women of India have had to bear the bitterness of partings, to suffer bereavement and privation, to live through days and months of doubt and anxiety, in ignorance of the fortunes of the war, and without tidings of their absent ones."

Reports have reached me from many sources of their fortitude and endurance during the strain of the war which have filled me with admiration and gratitude. Many have done more than this. I have heard of letters from Indian women to husbands, sons and brothers with the forces abroad, exhorting them to be brave in battle, stout-hearted in adversity, faithful to their country and the throne to the point of death. The history of India is full of the heroism and courage of its women in the past. The war has shown that their spirit is unabated."

"The women of India are equally noted for their charity and compassion. I know how deeply they have been moved by the desolation which the war has brought into many households, and how ready they have been to provide relief for the sick and wounded, and to lighten the privations of their poorer neighbors."

"I rejoice to think that many in business are at work which make for the greater well-being and advancement of the women of India. I watch with the deepest interest and sympathy every step that is taken to bring the means of education and knowledge more within their reach, to provide greater facilities for their obtaining proper medical relief through the agency of their own sex in women's hospitals or in the privacy of their own homes, to widen their interests and activities, and to secure to them the adequate protection of the law."

"I wish, with all my heart, that every success may crown these efforts."

CANADA HAS GREAT HERRING SUPPLY

(By Associated Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 30.—Great herring waters lie in the Arctic off Canada's far northern coast, according to a report issued at Ottawa regarding the findings of the Vilhjalmur Stefansson exploration expedition. The report was issued by the Canadian federal naval department under whose auspices Stefansson made his last trip north.

East and west of the Mackenzie river the herring are found, the report said. If the great transportation difficulties can ever be overcome the herring waters will be developed.

Y. M. C. A. HUTS WILL BE GIVEN AWAY

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The Young Men's Christian Association huts, to the number of about one thousand, dotted all over the country, which have been erected for the soldiers are to continue their usefulness in another sphere. Plans are being made for the huts to be moved into villages and turned into social clubs for the improvement of social life in industrial and rural communities.

COMPLEXION OF THE NORWEGIAN PARLIAMENT AGAINST SOCIALISTS

(Correspondence Associated Press)

CHRISTIANIA, Dec. 24.—(Via London Jan. 19)—The party of the Left, headed by the premier, Gunnar Knudsen, lost twenty-five seats in parliament in the recently held election. Instead of 80 seats which it controlled during the last session of the storting, the party now controls

35 seats. Opposition is divided between the Rights which have increased their membership from 24 to 55 and the Socialists who have 18 seats instead of 19 as in the previous parliament. The Knudsen party, or Left, still is the strongest division in the storting, but now has considerable less than a majority of its 126 members. It is expected that this will involve the reconstruction of the cabinet.

The most conspicuous event in the election was the defeat of the speaker of parliament, J. L. Moenkel, of Bergen, who was regarded as politically one of the strongest men in the house and one of the most staunch supporters of the cabinet.

The failure of the Socialists to increase the number of their votes throughout the country was a surprise as this party had profited by recent changes in the suffrage law. The party gained only 3000 votes while the Rights gained 63,000. This is ascribed to the Socialist program to exclude the teaching of religion from schools, to support prohibition and to reform society along the lines of the Russian Bolsheviks.

Although Norwegian women have had the suffrage for more than ten years, no woman ever has been elected member of parliament. One woman was nominated for that of five in the last election but received only 172 votes. A small fraction of self-supporting women have formed an election association with a platform asking voters never to vote for men but its influence was not perceptible at the polls.

Two important issues to come before the parliament at its session beginning in January are a reform in the election system by which the thinly settled districts now elect the majority of members while the cities, with a more dense population, have less representation in proportion to their population. Other proposals are to enact a law of initiative and referendum and to solve the prohibition question.
